

Many Important Matters at the Sessions of the Convention Yesterday

Two propositions under the consideration of the committee—the one proposed a proportionate reduction, based on the number of clergy in the diocese, giving two clerical and two lay deputies from each diocese, with an additional one for each 100 clergy. The committee evidently foresaw the immediate overthrow of this, and reported it as inexpedient. But in another report on equal reduction, making the representation three clerical and two lay, they reported favorably. In the discussion which arose one of the arguments brought out in favor of the reduced representation was that the General Convention was a purely legislative body, and the present large representation, therefore, was not needed. The number might be handled, the time would come when it would be too large. But these were overcome by the one argument that the General Convention was not merely a legislative body, but that it was a means through which the missionary spirit could be given to the church, and instead of reducing, it might be well to increase the representation so that there would be more to go forth with the enthusiasm which would awaken the church to its opportunities and obligations.

The West and Middle West were particularly strong in their opposition, declaring that even the picture of the General Convention carried back and shown to the people awakened not only interest, but hope and courage for the future. Thus, as has been foreseen, the missionary spirit shaped the form of the decision. The results were so overwhelmingly against the reduction that there can be no doubt about the sentiment that prevails.

Use of Revised Version.
Again there were several petitions presented asking for permission to use the Revised Version of the Bible in English in the church service. These petitions have come from so many quarters and so persistently that their prayer will be granted. It will be well to note that these petitions ask for the compulsory use of the Revised Version. This is so generally used by the clergy in their studies and so many are persuaded that it does give a more accurate translation of the original that they are convinced it will be for the good of the people. The only opposition that there can be is that it is taking away another of the old things to put in the new. There is a good deal of sentiment in this opposition, but when the sentiment is not connected with something wrong one can hardly be blamed for holding it. It is especially when it is in connection with the Book which will soon commemorate its 300th birthday. This opposition may still be strong enough to prevent even the permissive use for the present, but the time will come when it will be gone.

It is very doubtful, however, even if the permission were given, if a majority would have the heart to remove the old Bibles from the lecterns, and it is certain that many cars would long for the old Bibles which they had heard from childhood. After all, it may be that the movement is prompted more by the fact that the petition has been referred and is therefore desired more.

Not Likely to Pass.
An amendment to the canons was offered looking toward permission to allow ministers of the Gospel to preach in the Episcopal Church. This question has been discussed for some months in the Southern Churchman without any definite conclusion being reached. It is not probable that the amendment will pass.

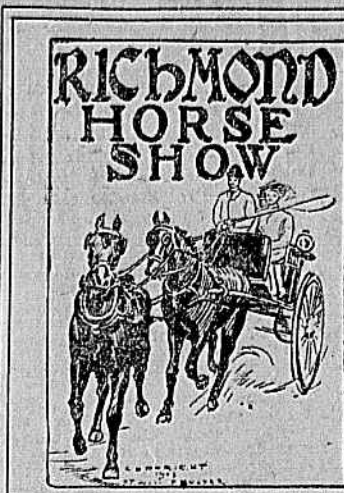

Another amendment along the same line was introduced to provide a body of lay preachers. While this might be done, and while there is no doubt that the people would benefit by these lay preachers, there would be of inestimable value, the author made the great mistake, which will develop in the discussion, if it ever succeeds in passing the committee, of adding a provision for the removal of the lay preachers from the church. This is a provision that is not only unnecessary, but it is a provision which the speaker was asked to cease while the house was called to pray for missions.

Sunday-Schools.
Immediately after the mission prayers Mr. George C. Thomas presented the report of the joint commission appointed by the last General Convention to study the Sunday-school, and its efficiency. There is no committee which has a greater or more important work to do, for there is no part of the church's work which needs greater attention. This is a report which that commission is one of the greatest. It is a report apart from other reports, and it will repay a careful and earnest reading and study. It is exceedingly practical and suggestive, and the good that will be done by its wide distribution will more than justify any expense incurred and more than repay the commission for its labors. The commission has wisely been continued and instructed to report to the next General Convention.

Dr. Shields, of Florida, asked to have a committee of three bishops and three presbyters appointed to prepare an office for the union of the sick.

This is asking for an ancient rite of the church which has fallen out of use, and which has New Testament authority behind it. There will probably be opposition to the move simply because there is no such office now in the prayer-book.

In House of Bishops.
A part of the day in the House of Bishops was taken up with a discussion of the negro question, and another memorial was offered in the House of Deputies asking for separate jurisdiction for the negroes. It is hardly possible that this will come up to-day, for there is enough other business on the calendar to consume the morning, while the afternoon will be given up to missions. It can be expected very soon, for no matter how the committee reports, the report will provoke much discussion.

LOWER HOUSE REJECTS PLAN TO REDUCE REPRESENTATION

Many Lively Debates During Sessions Yesterday--
Question of Change in Name Brought Up--
Diocese of Georgia Divided.

The fourth day's session of the House of Deputies began at 9 o'clock with morning service at St. James, Bishop Strange, of East Carolina, officiating.

The business session was called to order at 10 o'clock by the president. After a prayer, the minutes of last Friday were read, there having been no session on Saturday.

The president made the following announcement of members who had been appointed on the committee of courts of review to fill places that were vacant: Rev. Dr. Parsons, Mr. Wilmer, Rev. Dr. Storrs, Mr. Old, of Southern Virginia.

The president announced that he had written to Hampton School, acknowledging the invitation extended to the convention to visit the school.

Rev. Dr. Trew, of Los Angeles, reported for the committee on elections, substituting amendments in places of those reported by the committee.

Rev. Dr. Huntington reported for the committee on amendments of constitution.

The Preamble.
The committee were unanimously in favor of the preamble as suggested by the delegation from New York as follows:
The resolution is as follows:
Preamble.
This American church, first planted in Virginia, early in the seventeenth century, by representatives of the ancient Church of England; acknowledging the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments to be the record of God's revelation of Himself in His Son, and to contain all things necessary for salvation; holding the catholic creeds, to-wit, the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed, to be a sufficient statement of the Christian faith; maintaining the orders of the sacred ministry in such form as from the hands of faithful men it first received the same; reverently conserving the sacraments ordained by Christ Himself; and accounting to be members of the flock of Christ all who have been duly baptized in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, has ordained and established the furtherance of the work to which it has been called of God, the following constitution.

It was placed upon the calendar.

Will Make no Change.
Regarding the resolution offered by the delegates from New York that a new scheme be selected for representation in the General Convention of 1913, the committee declined to recommend the resolution, and asked to be Minneapolis, San Francisco, Boston and Richmond, and now Cincinnati is the logical place and it may be the place of meeting for the convention of 1910. However, it is commonly reported that New York has been practically agreed upon.

The business of the convention has at last assumed a definite shape, and it is beginning to be possible to see the end. It is expected that everything will be finished in time to adjourn not later than Saturday, October 19th.

Message No. 2--That the commission of the Swedish prayer book be continued.

Message No. 3--That canon 3, section 4, is hereby amended so that the opening sentence shall read, "A candidate for holy orders in any diocese or missionary district in this church or any church in communion with this church whose name shall have been stricken from the list of candidates."

Message No. 4--Canon 1, section 3, subdivision 1, shall be amended by striking out the clause lettered P, and by changing in accordance with this omission the lettering of the two following clauses.

Message No. 5--The House of Bishops informs the House of Deputies that it has received the report of the custodian of the Book of Common Prayer, and the report of the acting registrar of the General Convention, which are herewith transmitted, and has voted, the House of Deputies concurring that these be printed with accompanying documents as appendices to the journal.

For "Open Pulpit."
The regular order of the day was then taken up. Mr. Saunders, of Southern Virginia, moved that the consideration of the report of the committee on the "Open Pulpit" be postponed until Tuesday at 11 o'clock. It was carried. Mr. Saunders made the point that the report had just been printed, and that the members had not had a chance to consider the proposed rules.

Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady offered a resolution providing for authority for the clergy to invite ministers and laymen of other denominations to preach in Episcopal churches. The motion was referred to the proper committee.

Mr. Huntington called for the calendar. The house then considered the "preamble" as approved by the committee on amendments of constitution.

Mr. Huntington stated that he had no further argument to make, but that he would gladly answer questions.

The resolution was then voted upon. Mr. Old, of Southern Virginia, entered a protest, saying he hoped the resolution would not be voted upon at this time. He said he thought the question should be considered gravely, but that this question had been before the house for many years, and had not received the support of the able men who had sat in the house in the past. He said he had no desire to cause discord, but he averred that the words "American Church," as used in the preamble, conflicted with article 8 of the church constitution, which states that the church is the Protestant Episcopal Church of America. He urged that there be no dodging the question, but that the issue be squarely explained, that no lawyer would know how to describe the church in drawing a deed if the proposed resolution were passed. Judge Old continued by saying that the preamble was mistaken in saying that the American church had been planted at Jamestown 300 years ago. He said if he knew his history, that it was the English Church which was planted there, and from the English Church, at a very much later date, the American church had sprung. Judge Old urged that the matter be not voted upon at this time, but that the question be considered until Tuesday, after the discussion of the order of the day.

Reduction of Number.
The matter of reducing the clerical and lay delegates from four to three delegates in each diocese was next taken up.

Dr. Eggleston spoke in favor of the reduction of representation, explaining that the resolution was proposed by Massachusetts.

Rev. Dr. Parks, of New York, stated that at least six delegations had offered practically the same resolution which Massachusetts had offered.

Mr. Stetson, of New York, urged that the constitution be changed to permit any resident of a diocese to become a delegate, and not to restrict the delegation to those who are domiciled in the diocese. Mr. Stetson was asked if, under his resolution, could not the same delegate be sent from two or more dioceses. He replied that it could, but that no such thing had happened in 100 years.

Upon objection Mr. Stetson withdrew his motion.

Mr. New Mexico, objected to the number of the number of delegates under the present constitution, and from its clergy and one lay to the convention. But he said it was not done because the great coming together of churchmen was for the good of the church. He urged that the enthusiasm of a great number of churchmen be not done away with.

Representation Now.
Dr. Alsop spoke in favor of representation in proportion to the number of clergy and laymen. This, of course, means that the large dioceses would control the lower house. Dr. Alsop asked: "Do we want to put this in the table for all time? There were cries all over the house of 'Yes,' 'Yes.' A delegate from Chicago spoke in favor of large representation.

Rev. Dr. Grosvenor, of New York, spoke in favor of the motion, saying that the church is growing so rapidly that the nation is looking to the future.

The president stated that the number of the lower house at present is, clergy, 512; from the jurisdictions, 54. Total, 566.

Rev. Dr. Cathill spoke against the resolution, saying there should be no discrimination between the rich and poor dioceses; that representation should be equal.

Rev. Dr. Lindsey Patton, of West Texas, asked to be informed of the number of the deputies present.

The hour of noon having arrived, the president laid the house to prayer.

Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady objected to the motion before the house, saying that he was aware that the movement to deduct representation had come from the large dioceses from the East. He spoke, he said, for the small dioceses of the West, and offered the resolution.

Representation Again.
Mr. Stetson, of Indianapolis, spoke in favor of the resolution concerning reductions of representation. He said the General Convention was not organized to create enthusiasm or for personal honor or to please the women. The body was, he said, organized to legislate for the church. The number of deputies, he said, is too great, as the church is rapidly growing and new dioceses are being organized, so that after awhile, as eight deputies came from each diocese, there will be 1,600 and later on 3,200. "Good!" "Good!" cried those who are opposed to the reduction of the number of delegates.

Rev. Dr. Samuel Ringold, the oldest member of the lower house, who has sat in the house since 1877, spoke in opposition to the resolution.

Mr. Mansfield, of Connecticut, favored the resolution.

Rev. Dr. Harding, of Washington, thought it was wrong to cross a bridge before one came to it, and so he offered the resolution. He made a hit when he said that the deputies from New York and Massachusetts were so able that it would be a great hardship to have any of them away from the convention.

Rev. Lindsey Patton, of West Texas, spoke along the same lines as Dr. Harding.

Resolution Lost.
Deputy W. R. Butler, of Central Pennsylvania, had a word to say in favor of enthusiasm. He wanted a crowd and plenty of religious fervor. The church, he said, was too much afraid of enthusiasm. A member had been criticized the other day as being too enthusiastic, and some one had said: "He's no churchman; he is no better than a Methodist." He urged that the motion be not passed.

Rev. Dr. Grammer, of Pennsylvania, spoke in favor of smaller representation. He said, he said, the convention was growing so large that only the very large cities could entertain it. He favored the convention going to all parts of the country, and for this reason he favored smaller representation. There were cries of "Question," for the house had tied of speeches.

The resolution was then read by the secretary.

The vote was then taken by dioceses in alphabetical order. The vote was then announced.

For the resolution--clergy, 12; laity, 10.

Against the resolution--clergy, 49; laity, 45.

The resolution was lost.

Sunday-School Report.
Mr. Thomas, of Philadelphia, read the printed report of the joint commission of the General Convention on Sunday-School instruction, of which Bishop Talbot is chairman. The following is a summary of the report:

The report begins by recognizing the importance of the Sunday-school to the church in the past, but suggests that it can be made more useful in the future.

First, by providing better instruction. This can be secured by a more thorough and extended training of students for the ministry, and by helping teachers in the school to possess higher qualifications for their work. While expressing high appreciation of the services of women teachers, the report is urged that men teachers are greatly needed, and that the school furnishes a fine field for intelligent Christian men.

Second, the Sunday-school can be improved by better grading of classes and by a more complete equipment with what is needed for more successful teaching, such as convenient rooming supplies of Bibles, prayer books, hymnals and provision for current expenses of various kinds.

Third, the Sunday-school can be improved by better grading of classes and by a more complete equipment with what is needed for more successful teaching, such as convenient rooming supplies of Bibles, prayer books, hymnals and provision for current expenses of various kinds.

Fourth, the school must be kept in closer touch.

kept in closer touch with the church, and the church must minister more richly to the life of children. The aim should be to keep our young people loyal to the church. The school is not to be a substitute for the church, but a helper of the child's religious growth in such way that he remains faithful unto his life's end. The school is to co-operate with the family, and not to remove responsibility from parents. Its success is in helping parents to train up young people to devotion and earnestness in the Christian life.

In this connection a longer period of preparation for confirmation is recommended, and that the young people be trained to be active and generous in helping the church's work.

Fifth. Considerable space in the report is given to the more efficient organization of Sunday-schools and the formation of instruction committees. The main thought is that proper organization, intelligent supervision and the exchange of views of those especially interested may do much toward helping us all gain better results.

The report concludes with the offering of five resolutions:

First. As to the adoption of the report, and continuing the commission.

Second. As to urging special training of students for the ministry.

Third and Fourth. As to certain additions to the canon relating to students for the ministry.

Fifth and Sixth. As to the printing and distribution of this report.

Resolutions Adopted.
Mr. Thomas then offered several important resolutions, which were adopted. Among them were:

That this report be adopted, and that the joint commission on Sunday-school instruction be continued, with a view to the further prosecution of its original objects, with authority to promote the organization of such auxiliary bodies as may be necessary for carrying out the recommendations of this report. (Appendix G.)

That the General Convention hereby urges upon the various theological seminaries of the church a more adequate training of candidates for the ministry for the supervision of the religious education of the young.

New Members Seated.
The president announced the following committees: Special committee to consider proposed appointment of a commission to raise $50,000 for the General Clergy Relief Fund: Rev. Dr. Wilkins, Los Angeles; Rev. Dr. Hodges, Massachusetts; Rev. Dr. Old, Southern Ohio; Rev. Mr. Williams, Washington; Mr. Francis L. Stetson, New York; Mr. Darrow, Tennessee; Mr. Parker, Colorado. To all vacancies on the general committee on work among the Jews: Rev. Cornelius Smith, New York; Rev. Dr. Reese, Tennessee.

The House of Bishops sent a message to the house announcing that it had consented to the formation of the new diocese of Duluth. A message was also received that the Bishops of California and Newark had been appointed to serve on the committee to formulate the special order of business.

The new members of the convention from Duluth were then announced by the president, and took their seats. They were: Rev. H. F. Parrish, Rev. Albert W. Ryan, Rev. Annesley T. Young, Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh, Mr. Page Morris, Dr. J. H. Beatty, Mr. George H. Crosby, Mr. F. B. Millard.

The house then adjourned for luncheon.

Afternoon Session.
The afternoon session was called to order at 3:15 o'clock, and Bishop Montgomery, of London, addressed the house on the subject of Pan-Anglican missions, after which a number of resolutions were presented.
